

Strategic Accounting for Managers: One Company's Road of Discovery

Strategic Accounting for Managers tells the compelling story of the Multree family, owners of a small business that must face new business realities or succumb to business failure. This family's story is a clear, non-technical presentation of the management accounting issues managers need to know in order to remain competitive: How do companies create value? How much cash can we take? Are we following the plan? Will our people do this? How do we begin the improvement process? Which process should we improve first? How can we control the change process? Each of these questions—and many more—is answered as the Multree family travels a Road of Discovery from traditional to new managerial methods.
