

Creator of Reason: A Rational Approach to Gods Covenant with the Jewish People

A philosophy dedicated to the idea that we can make sense of all of Gods actions in the World. Nothing that God does in this world is beyond our theoretical capability to understand. Indeed, it is our obligation to understand Gods Creation. We must not accept logical contradictions in our understanding of how God runs His Creation. There should never be logical contradictions in how we understand our own obligations in this world. There are no questions that we cannot answer. Creator of Reason attempts to create a solid logical structure. Nothing is assumed or taken for granted. The book starts with a review of logic itself. It continues by analyzing the justification for any knowledge and certainty that we can achieve. Next, it looks at the rational grounds for the idea that there is a Creator, and asks whether such grounds lead us to a concept of a Creator similar to the concepts we have of God. It asks what grounds we have for seeing the Torah as a message from God. The book analyzes the core messages of the Torah, asking what implications these have for our lives and the direction that Humanity as a whole needs to take. What does the Torah say about the reason for suffering in the world? To what extent can we determine what shape the future can take? What kind of dialog can humanity have with God? Where does God want us to go? All these issues are discussed using key insights from the disciplines of Philosophy of Science, Physics, Molecular Biology, Evolution, Archeology, Computer Science and the future of Technology.
